

MRB – IRRDB

International Workshop On Soil Fertility, Good Agricultural Practices And Productivity

9 – 10th April 2019 | Mahkota Hotel | Melaka

Background

The MRB-IRRDB International Workshop on soil fertility, good agricultural practices (GAP) and productivity is scheduled to be held in Melaka from 9th to 10th April 2019. The workshop is a platform for knowledge sharing, dissemination of information and new discoveries, especially in the area of soil, GAP and productivity for rubber plantation. The workshop is a gathering of researchers, academicians, implementing agencies, students and rubber industry players to discuss issues and challenges faced by them. Participants will be provided with expert analysis as well as having interactive sessions to discuss new technologies to address the issues and challenges.

Objectives

- To increase participants' knowledge and understanding of research findings and latest technologies especially in the field of soil, GAP and productivity for rubber trees.
- To provide relevant exposures and experiences to participants in the field through presentations and interactive discussions with researchers.
- To provide an opportunity for participants to gain knowledge and experiences particularly from IRRDB member countries.
